

ONE SURVIVOR REMEMBERS

Gerda Weissmann Klein
Holocaust Survivor

Gerdie's parents who perished in Auschwitz

Speaking of her daily family life before the war she said,

Gerdie's brother Arthur Weissmann

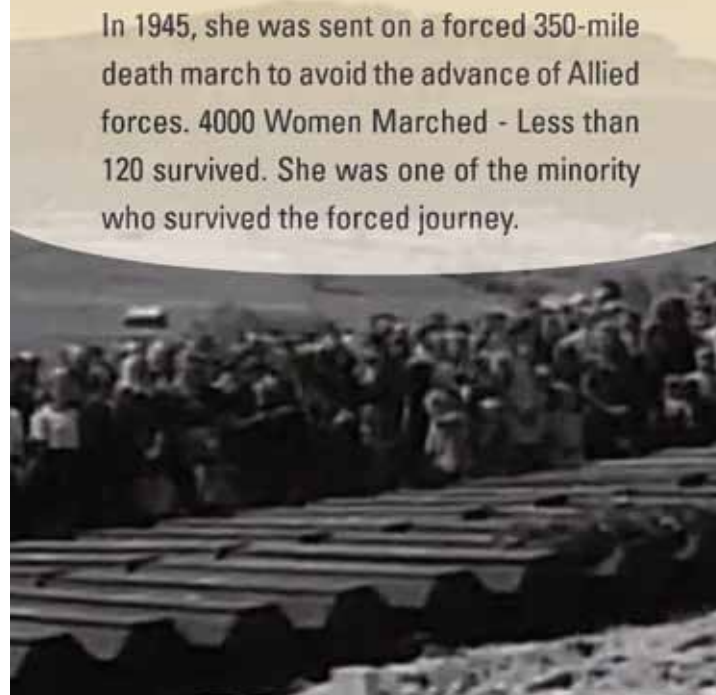

"The reality which I had always taken for granted now became the most remote fantasy."

Lieutenant Kurt Klein

The girl who was my guide made sort of a sweeping gesture over this scene of devastation, and said the following words: "Noble be man, merciful and good." And I could hardly believe that she was able to summon a poem by the German poet Goethe, which was called--is called--"The Divine," at such a moment.

In 1945, she was sent on a forced 350-mile death march to avoid the advance of Allied forces. 4000 Women Marched - Less than 120 survived. She was one of the minority who survived the forced journey.

Saying Kaddish over the Dead of the 3 month Death March

Gerda and Kurt Klein

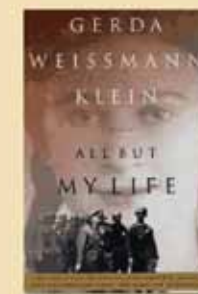

US Holocaust Memorial
Gerda & Kurt Klein

WINNER
1995 Academy
Award for Documentary
Short Subject

Gerda's Oscar Acceptance Speech

Book: All But My Life

Movie: One Survivor Remembers

One Survivor Remembers (Film)